

The official Infinite Spur newsletter

MARKETING AND FASHION PROGRAM

With the collaboration of the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Puerto Rico, the second edition of its International Marketing and Fashion, Design and Culture program will take place on February 1st, which will be carried out in an international context and with a strong component of entrepreneurship and collaborative project management

CONTENTS OF THIS EDITION

NEW WEB

We have redesigned our website to offer better navigability and show you the interesting virtual projects that we have underway. A more modern website which preserves our values, our essence and our international spirit

SNOWFALL IN MADRID

Madrid and a large part of the Peninsula were completely covered by the biggest snowfall of the century brought by the storm Filomena, which left us incredible scenes and landscapes

BLOG

This month we present to you two articles on our blog: "5 important reasons to participate in an international virtual program", and "How technology is transforming the fashion industry"

IN FEBRUARY...

These are the activities and projects that will begin soon:

- Interview with Carmen Morente (February 12th)
- Flamenco workshop (February 19th and 20th)

My name is Emily.

(Hola! Me llamo Emily.)

My name is Aolany.

(Hola! Me llamo Aolany.)

ENGLISH FOR ALL

English for All, our international pilot project to teach English specifically designed for students with special needs, enthusiastically begins its second year by expanding the number of students who will benefit both from learning English as a second language and from the international and multicultural educational experience that will have the opportunity to share with each other.

The COVID-19 pandemic forced a shift in educational experiences for some Clarion University graduate students this summer, but it also provided them with another opportunity to help some eager students in Spain learn English. The students have Down syndrome, autism, or other types of cognitive developmental delays, and they attend the Promotor Program at the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid in Spain.

Special thanks to the Prodis Foundation and Clarion University of Pennsylvania, our partners, for making it possible for this pilot project to become a program for the future.

“

This project was a tremendous opportunity for collaboration, partnership, and learning

Dr. Gwyneth Price, Dean of the College of Education, Health & Human Sciences.

